

Napa Station 2007 Napa Valley Sauvignon Blanc

As Reviewed by the South Beach Wine Club.

While attending The 2009 Miami Wine and Food Festival, I was able to taste some great wine from around the world. One winery that stood out was Napa Valley winery Napa Station, whose selections included a Cabernet Sauvignon, Chardonnay, and Sauvignon Blanc. After tasting their 2007 Sauvignon Blanc, I found there was a hint of sweetness and found that there was 10% Semillon blended into the wine. Wanting to do a more in-depth tasting, I grabbed a bottle and put it in the cellar. This past weekend, I brought the bottle out when a Sauvignon Blanc was requested. Here are my thoughts:

Napa Station 2007 Napa Valley Sauvignon Blanc

On the nose, there is lemon zest, a touch of minerality similar to a bottle from the Loire, and vanilla bean, reminiscent of oak barreling. This vanilla flavor is curious considering the wine is fermented in 100% stainless steel. On the palate, the bottle resembles a French style wine even more.
